THE VOICE OF THANKSGIVING

Official Newsletter of Glad Tidings 3AM

"A Year's Revolution"

A full year's time has passed since the last we published an issue of, "The Voice of Thanksgiving", and while this long delay has not been our direct intention, we are thankful once again to bring this newsletter to the masses. The Lord has very much blessed the efforts of Glad Tidings 3AM over the past year, as our influence and social media presence has steadily grown and widened. As mentioned in our past issue, we had an upcoming trip to Botswana and South Africa over the turn of the 2024 new year which was a tremendous success, as we were able to labor both in word and counsel to the many souls we were brought in contact with. Over this past year we have taken many speaking engagements around the United States and have been able to witness God's leading hand touch many persons through the process. There are many experiences that could be elaborated upon that would help to encapsulate the Lord's blessing over the past year but a particular youth week of prayer series, conducted at Harbert Hills Academy back in March of this year, is worthy of note. The Spirit of the Lord animated the hearts and minds of all present but especially the reception of the young students was deeply impressive. Continued on next page.....

As is to be understood in this generation of the Earth’s history, the youth are the particular mark of Satanic power, as this special demographic of the world’s population has the greatest potential of revealing Christ to the world, thus breaking Satan’s power, hence the devilish vehemence manifested towards them. During the series we spoke upon such subjects as Bible Prophecy, How to be born again, knowing God’s calling for your life, the importance of forgiveness, sexual purity, and much more. To see the practical reception of these vital subjects by the youth, despite Satan’s efforts to counteract their impact, was remarkable. Upon reflection, I, Evangelist Tucker, told my wife that of all the meetings we have conducted to this point, this particular week of prayer series was the strongest I have ever felt the Spirit of God poured out. Wonderful connections were made with the students, and experiences that we will forever cherish. This series is on our YouTube Channel, under the playlist section, entitled, “Harbert Hills, Youth Week of Prayer”. In all, the Lord has been graciously faithful and we thank all who have continued supporting the work of this ministry both by their prayers and consistent financial support. We pray this newsletter be a staple spiritual educator for all its readers for many days to come!

FAMILY CORNER: PRACTICAL WORK FOR THE SANCTIFICATION OF OUR HOMES

By Erika Tucker

As discussed in our previous article regarding the home, we saw that "The well-being of society, the success of the church, the prosperity of the nation, depend on home influences." MH 349.1 In light of all the tension and division in our society and government, we can only conclude that no politician or legislation can change our deplorable condition, for their current state is a mere reflection of the generality of homes in the nation. The question should also be asked, is the same spirit of right vs. left seen in the relationships of our homes, whether between husband and wife, parents and children, brothers and sisters? In addition, if disobedience in "eating and drinking" lead to division and alienation in the first home circle of Adam and Eve, should we look any further than our own tables? What is the spirit and fruit manifested at your home table? "The work of sanctification begins in the home. Those who are Christians in the home will be Christians in the church and in the world. There are many who do not grow in grace because they fail of cultivating home religion. In the home the spirit of criticism and fault-finding should have NO place. The peace of the home is too sacred to be marred by this spirit. But how often, when seated at the meal-table, the members of the family pass round a dish of criticism, fault-finding, and scandal. Were Christ to come today, would He not find many of the families who profess to be Christians, cherishing the spirit of criticism and unkindness? The members of such families are unready to unite with the family above." ST February 17, 1904, par. Continued on Page 5

FAMILY CORNER: PRACTICAL WORK FOR THE SANCTIFICATION OF OUR HOMES, CONTINUED.....

Let us pray and seek the Lord that our homes may be a place this side of Heaven, where angels will delight to abide with us at our dinning tables.

Challenge: Create an activity that involves your family having intentional table conversations that helps you to learn more of Christ and of one another (make sure they are pleasant) and ways to cultivate gratitude and praise. Example: Choose a Bible story for discussion and talk of the lessons to be learned, that can be practically applied to the daily life. In addition, everyone finds something they appreciate about a member of the family or an area in the family member's life in which they were struggling, but have been gaining the victory.

Email with results or ideas of the activities you have tried.

Legislative Misapprehension

BY SAMUEL TUCKER

Historically, the political process in the United States has promised its devotees the assurance that the will of an enlightened people would be the driving force of the nation and a just fruitage being the result of such a procedure. Many laws and regulations have been enacted over the course of the nation's history to ensure that every just citizen would have the right and freedom to exercise their political due process without any tyrannical interference. Yet despite these efforts, the same nefarious and even wicked practices that have characterized the many empires of yesteryear, are seen with even greater rigor in America. This state of affairs ensures, as per usual, that the rights and will of the common man go unnoticed, vehemently despised, and crushed beneath the will of the ruling class. Contained within the sacred writings is a dictum that lends itself with much force as it relates to this present subject, "For the love of money is the root of all evil, which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." 1 Timothy 6:10 As has been mentioned by others upon different matters, much of how the world operates functions upon the universal premise of the "golden rule", "he who has the gold makes the rules". This fundamental, yet extremely unfortunate state of things reemphasizes the fact that those who hold the financial purse strings in the United States are apart of the true ruling power of this imperialistic nation. The certainty of this reality has been commented upon ad nauseam by many an intellectual, but the words of Avro Manhattan, the brilliant twentieth century Italian writer and historian, when discussing the role of big business in the American political system said, "Big Business", the promoter of practically all subsequent North American aggressions....the most persistent destroyers of the civil liberties of the American masses, and the injectors into the blood-stream of American democracy of that expansionistic poison which was eventually to plunge the United States" Continued on Page 6

AVRO MANHATTAN

"in to the path of naked hemispheric and extra-hemispheric aggression. The buying of political power had been practiced by them over a long period, and had yielded immense profits. The buying however, was not always successful, while the mobilization of the political machinery very often entailed delays which proved most harmful and, indeed, disastrous. To surmount such defect, towards the end of the last century, {19th Century}, Big Business felt strong enough to buy, no longer politicians or sets of politicians, but the presidency itself." {The Dollar and the Vatican, pg. 47} As can be readily seen by this emphatic statement, financial capital, with its ability to buy political power, is the force, in part, selecting the state officials and driving the nefarious objectives of U.S. foreign and domestic policy. Though this hidden conspiracy would be enough to cause any average citizen to moan in despair, and to cry for want of deliverance from such a reality, this pitiful state finds even new heights when considered from its prophetic implications. The first few verses of Revelation 13 describes a "beast" coming up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns. A beast in Bible prophecy according to Daniel 7:17, 23, represents a kingdom, or nation, and this nation or kingdom, as has been interpreted by most, if not nearly all of the protestant reformers of the middle ages, is the Papacy, the Roman Catholic Church, with the Pope of Rome as its head. The second beast spoken of in the same chapter of Revelation 13, is described as coming into prominence after the "forty and two months" or "1260" years of papal supremacy, from 538-1798 A.D., as has been noted by such Biblical expositors as Uriah Smith and J.N. Andrews of the nineteenth century. In addition, with this beast's characteristics of a lamb and dragon, the aforementioned J.N. Andrews being the first if not one of the firsts, to attribute this beast to the United States. The reason why this revelation comes with so much redounding force to this last hour of history,

URIAH SMITH

is the fact that the prophecy of Revelation 13 describes the two horned beast as making an image to the first beast, or in other words the latter trying to imitate the former, and when there is imitation, the one in control is not the imitator but the object being venerated, in this case, the Papacy. With this startling uncovering in mind, is there any evidence that the Papacy or the Roman Catholic Church is the true ruling power in U.S.? It is sadly to be acknowledged that there is a mountain of evidence to confirm this conclusion. As referenced in our prior issue, Edith Star Miller or Lady Queensborough, gives us a very synoptic, yet thorough statement of Roman Catholic hierarchical proclivities in America. "When one studies the activities of Roman Catholics in America and realizes that, there, they are far more a political entity with subversive tendencies than a religious body." {Occult Theocracy, pg. 552} Elaborating upon this point, the famed twentieth century author and philosopher, Ayn Rand stated, "The Catholic Church has never given up the hope to re-establish the medieval union of church and state, with a global state and a global theocracy as its ultimate goal" {Capitalism: The Unknown Ideal, pg. 361} These observations help to crystalize in the mind the language of the prophecy of Revelation 13, that these two global powers will use their influence here at the end of time to ensure that, "no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name." With these things in mind, how should the God fearing American pivot themselves in the political process and not find themselves getting caught up in the mire of legislative misapprehension, thus contributing to a failed system. Bible prophecy plainly declares in Daniel 2, that "in the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom", meaning that Christ is soon to do away completely with all of these earthly powers, and recreate this world anew in His proper image. Though we as good citizens of whatever country we may find ourselves should seek to uphold, the righteous principles of our nations, without it doing violence to our conscience. If we genuinely desire to inculcate righteousness within any nation, we must follow Christ's method of restoration and preservation. Jesus stated very clearly in Matthew 5:14, that "ye", or the "church" here on earth, is the light of the world, and this light emitted by the church in the spreading of the gospel and the performance of righteousness works, will act as a "savour" to a world perishing in its own sins. Some may try to comfort themselves with this notion of "voting for the lesser of two evils", as if the lesser evil is not as fully diabolical as the other. Yet these comforts soon turn to extreme pain, as it is soon evidenced that one's vote is directly contributing to greed, genocide, illegal wars, grinding taxation, human trafficking, and the list goes on. As mentioned prior, the political process in America at one time could, to some real degree, offer genuine hope of change and true progress for the common citizen,, especially on a federal level. But with the stated facts here mentioned, to continue participation in such a farce, is nothing more than a fools errand. In all, our focus as citizens of a higher kingdom, must be to cooperate faithfully with our Lord and master in spreading the three angel's messages of Revelation 14:6-12, not only in a spiritual way but practically as well. For this revelation of the glory of God will help to speed up the demise of these corrupt power systems that have bent themselves to the task of warring against God.

AYN RAND

"Fear God and give glory to him for the hour of His judgment is come: and worship Him that made Heaven and earth"

REVELATION 14:7

The Presidential Campaign and Apostacy from National Principles: Part 1

BY IKEMBA BALOGU

As we approach the final days of the current presidential campaign in the United States, it would do us well to take a look and consider this nation, and a sketch of its history, as it is referred to in prophecy and revealed in the book of the Revelation. In that prophecy, Revelation 13:11-18, the United States is described as "another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb." These horns signify "power" in prophecy (read Dan. 8:1-7; Hab. 3:1-4). But what are "the two horns like a lamb" upon the beast, which is the United States of America, in Rev. 13:11-18? It signifies two great principles, namely, Protestantism and Republicanism. In light of Rev. 13:11, the following statement accords with this fact: "'And he had two horns like a lamb.' The lamb-like horns indicate youth, innocence, and gentleness, fitly representing the character of the United States when presented to the prophet as 'coming up' in 1798. The Christian exiles who first fled to America, sought an asylum from royal oppression and priestly intolerance, and they determined to establish a government upon the broad foundation of civil and religious liberty. Their views found place in the Declaration of Independence, which sets forth the great truth that 'all men are created equal' and endowed with the inalienable right to 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.' And the Constitutions guarantees to the people the right of self-government, providing that representatives elected by the popular vote shall enact and administer the laws.

Freedom of religious faith was also granted, every man being permitted to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience. Republicanism and Protestantism became the fundamental principles of the nation. These principles are the secret of its power and prosperity..."—Great Controversy, pg. 441, par. 3. Now, the true meaning of the American principle of Republicanism is simply government by the consent of the people, or as Abraham Lincoln once described, "a government of the people, for the people, and by the people." In other words, it is, in practice, "a nation without a king" because the people govern themselves. This meaning of the principle of Republicanism, being the cornerstone of civil liberty, is clearly set forth in the American Declaration of Independence, which states: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness.---That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers FROM THE CONSENT OF THE GOVERNED..."—American Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776. And in the Preamble of the American Constitution, we are compelled to recognize that the government of the United States is "a government of the people, for the people, and by the people" and thus the principle of Republicanism, which is only self-government, is one of the fundamental principles of this nation because it begins with this proclamation:, Continued on Page 11.....

"That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed..."

DECLERTION OF INDEPENDENCE, 1776

"We the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America." Who "ordained" the Constitution? "The people." Who "established" the Constitution? "The people." As to the true meaning of that other fundamental principle, that is, the American principle of Protestantism, it is simply "the separation between religion and the State," even the total separation of Church and State or as Thomas Jefferson once expressed, "a wall of separation between church and state." In other words, this principle espouses the idea of "a church without a pope" and the meaning of the principle of Protestantism, being the cornerstone of the religious liberty, is set forth in Article VI, Clause 3 of the American Constitution, which states that "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States." Again, in the first Amendment of the Bill of Rights in the American Constitution, we read: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof..." Furthermore, the foundation of the idea of "the separation of religion and the State" is clearly intimated in the American Declaration of Independence: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness.---That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed..." Here "the people" recognizes another Power, even "their Creator," who is higher than themselves. Now, it is important to notice that they are careful not to specify whether this Power is the God of the Bible, or Allah of the Koran, or any other god of the various sects of religion. But the supreme thought that is given here is that whomever "their Creator" might be, He is acknowledged as having "created all men equal" and He, by creation, has endowed mankind with certain unalienable rights. In other words, "the rights" of "the people" are not given by any man, nor group of men, neither the State but by "their Creator" and this, said "the people," is a "self-evident" truth. Moreover, "governments" are instituted "among men" for the sole purpose "to secure," and not make or abridge, "these rights," which were "endowed" unto mankind by "their Creator." Therefore, in the American Declaration of Independence, a clear distinction is made between "the Creator" and human "governments," between the Maker of mankind and the State. The Former has "endowed" mankind "with unalienable rights" and the latter has only been instituted as a tool or instrument of the people "to secure" or protect those "unalienable rights." To ensure that this clear distinction would not be overlooked by the "posterity" of "the people," the principle of the complete separation between religion and the State was enshrined into the American Constitution. Now that we understand the two great principles of the United States, we are prepared give a historical sketch of the national apostasy of the United States from both of these principles, which is clearly foretold in the prophecies of Daniel and the Revelation.....TO BE CONTINUED
